

Decision Making

Decision Making involves the process of selecting a course of action from multiple alternatives based on available information and preferences. In the context of artificial intelligence, decision-making algorithms aim to automate or assist human decision-making processes across various domains, including finance, healthcare, logistics, and marketing. Decision-making models use techniques such as decision trees, reinforcement learning, and optimization algorithms to analyze data, evaluate options, and recommend or execute decisions.